

ABSTRACT

An electro-luminescence display device and a driving method thereof for assuring a high aperture ratio are disclosed. In the device, a plurality of pixel cells is arranged in a matrix type. A plurality of data electrodes applies video signals to the pixel cells. A plurality of gate lines are connected to the pixel cells positioned adjacently to each other at the upper/lower sides thereof in such a manner to cross the data electrodes.